PREFACE

A world directory of medical libraries has been needed for a number of years. Early in 1962 the National Library of Medicine undertook the task of compiling such a directory as a contribution toward international communication in the medical sciences. A decision was made to limit the compilation to libraries outside the United States and Canada, since the latter countries are covered in a directory prepared by the Medical Library Association and readily available in printed form.*

The list was compiled from published and unpublished sources within the Library and is necessarily incomplete. To facilitate the preparation of an amended and expanded edition corrections, additions, and suggestions would be most welcome.

The arrangement of the directory is alphabetical by continent, country, city and institution, in the order given. The most complete address obtainable has been supplied, and whenever comparatively recent information was available on size of collection and librarian-in-charge, this also was included.
